

The present invention concerns new nucleic acid and amino acid sequences of the human T cell receptor and their use for the diagnosis and therapy of carcinomas in particular of kidney cell carcinomas.

The present invention concerns new nucleic acid and amino acid sequences of the human T cell receptor and their use for the diagnosis and therapy of carcinomas in particular of kidney cell carcinomas.